The Latest Intelligence from the Seat of War.

St. Johns, N. F., Monday, May 16.

A dispatch from Paris of the 6th says: "The Emperor the evening receives the following:

Alessandria, Wednesday, May 4—Evening.

The Austrians, who had crossed the Po in small numbers at Cremona and Po, and pushed their vanguard as far as Stella, have crossed the river. The Austrian divisions, reported on the right bank, are still thundering the passage of the Po at Trecastello, but the river being much swelled by rain since another division is their crossing. The rain continues, and the low ground is covered with water.

The Moniteur also contains the following:

Paris, Thursday, May 5.

The reigning Duchess entered Parma yesterday. Part of the troops left gone to meet her, and another part were drawn up along the roads.

The London Times, of the 6th, speaking of the military operations, says, they have come to no other march than that, after having been seven days on the Sardinian soil, the invaders have not advanced more than thirty-five miles from the frontier river. It seems the French Austria had stated heavily for an opportunity, but then it must now thrown it away. They have gained nothing by their choice of the movement and neither initiative, except the power of making forced contributions on the enemy's country, while all the positions Sardinia holds are connected by lines of rail with each other, and with Alpine passes into France.

GREAT BRITAIN.

The death of the Duke of Leeds is announced; hard Cranborne succeeds him.

The Duke of Buccleuch had an audience of Queen Victoria on Tuesday, and delivered his letters of recall.

The members returned to the new House of Commons up to Tuesday night amounted to 552. The Times estimates the total Ministerial gain at 17, and the Herald at 24.

A dispatch from Marseilles, of the 5th, says Lord Brougham leaves to-night for Paris.

FROM INDIA AND CHINA.

The dates from Bombay by telegraph are to the 16th of April. Intelligence had just been received from Mahmoud to the 9th. TAREIA TOPEE was captured by Colonel MEADE's detachment on the previous night with the assistance of MAHE SINGH, whose surrender to Colonel MEAD had previously taken place on the 2d. The advance under Colonels BEALE and ROSS, in combined movement, overtook the rebels in Sumunga Jungle and killed five hundred of them. Tareia Pleasure at present. The British loss was trifling.

The Vigo has 250 passengers for New-York, and all on board were well.

COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

City Times of the Money Market.

From the Times City Article of Thursday evening: "This has been nothing day in the English funds, and on the whole passed off well. No fall has taken place, and delays have been granted in all cases of credit to the end of the week. The Bank of England will now make advances to their customers on approved bills at 5½ ⅌ cent. The demand for discount at the advanced rate was very active, both in the Bank and the open market. The joint stock banks have raised their allowance on deposits one per cent, the rates being now 3½ ⅌ cent. The raising of the rate of discount to 4½ ⅌ cent is the result merely of the movement of the money market. There is really no very excessive pressure on the part of the mercantile body, but the enormous outcry consequent on the general arming of Europe absorbs specie. These causes created an increase in the value of capital during the two months preceding the declaration of war against Russia, and the Bank lost about £1,600,000 of bullion. The succeeding two months it lost an additional £3,150,000, and from that day until nearly the end of the conquest there was no serious reduction.

The Times says the Austrian banking firm just failed at Vienna was one of high standing. Their liabilities are reported at £2,000,000 sterling, but the sum is conjectural.

The Daily News City article of Thursday evening says the situation at the Bank had no effect on the Funds, which opened at the quotations current at 4 o'clock yesterday, and remained at that rate until about one hour after the announcement. There were, consequently, some fluctuations, but the closing prices were ¼ ⅌ cent better than yesterday.

The rise in the rate of discount causes sales of English Railway and other stocks hitherto held in Continental money. It thus happened that Consols have improved. Several other classes of securities have again given way.

The gold withdrawn from the Bank to-day for exportation was 48,000; 24,000 in American gold was also purchased for the continent.

The General Markets.

The Cloth appears to hand contain nothing in relation to the Liverpool Cotton Market, and the commercial intelligence is very scanty.

Consols were quoted, at 1 P. M. of the 6th, at 90¼ for money and account, and the new. Three ⅌ cents. At 4 P. M. yesterday, 90 1/16. Consols were at 90¼@ 90½ for money, 90¼ for account, and 89¾ for the new Threes ⅌ cents.

The market for American produce remained flat. A small business was done in Cotton, prices showing an advance of 1/16 ⅌ cent. In the case of Tobacco, the quotations had no alteration, but there was a good demand for the spot and for delivery in June. Sugar was on London had fallen to 40s.

LIVERPOOL CORN MARKET.

Messrs. Morson & Sparrow and Marsden report an unchanged rate, but buyers were afraid to operate, and prices at a decline of 2@3d. Provisions were quiet, some trading occurring in other articles.

LONDON CORN MARKET.

This market was very small of everything. Wheat was very quiet, and in some cases 1d. less money had been taken. Barley was in fair request at last quotations. Oats dull of sale and without alteration in quotations. Red Norfolk Flour holders demanded last quotations.

At Liverpool, on Thursday, Tallow was quiet at 60s.

MANCHESTER MARKET.

There was a full attendance at this market, and the little disposition for business. Wheat and Flour were held for an advance. Oats and Oatmeal realized 6d. ⅌ cent, and no more money, respectively. Beans and Indian Corn were 2@3d. higher. Grain quiet but steady. Cotton flat. Tea quiet; Gunpowder 1s. 2d. Rice active. Saltpetre very firm; 2,000 bags Bombay sold at 30s. 3d.@40s.

DUBLIN CORN MARKET.

Messrs. Hone & Co. report all farmers' produce in short supply, and buyers and sellers in abeyance. Prime samples realized full prices of last day. In foreign Wheat there was nothing. Maize was in request at last day's prices. Flour was in request at an advance of 1s. ⅌ sack. Trade was quiet and the weather very fine.

BY THE ARAGO AT THIS PORT.

The United States Mail steamer Arago, Captain Lucas, from Southampton May 4, arrived at this port yesterday morning.

The Arago brings 140 passengers, the usual mails and 400 tons merchandise.

Amongst the Arago's passengers, we notice W. M. Gwin, Jr. Esq., bearer of dispatches from London; the Rev. Dr. FARRAR, pastor of St. Joseph's Church New-York, bearer of dispatches from Rome, and Emile CHEVALIER, of the Theatre Français, New-York.

On Friday, May 13, 7 P. M., off Cape Race, Capt. Lucas gave the box for the Associated Press to a deberman, to be landed as soon as possible.

Off Cape Race saw several icebergs, also passed several at intervals for the previous twelve hours to passing Cape Race—distance 140 miles on an E. N. E. course.

The advices by this arrival were received in brief, on Monday evening, and published in our morning issue of yesterday.

THE WAR MOVEMENTS.

Movements of the Troops in France—Affairs in Paris—The Empress—Departure of the Emperor to Take Command of the Army.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PARIS, Monday, May 2, 1859.

After a three days' inexplicable delay, the Austrian army has crossed the line into Piedmont, and the war has therefore commenced. The three days' grace allowed to Piedmont by the Austrian ultimatum expired on Thursday afternoon last, and it was reasonable to suppose that, once it was all important to arrive before the French, that on Tuesday night or Wednesday morning the Austrians would have passed the line. They did not pass it, however, till Friday afternoon, and since they then lost three most precious days—which gave exactly time enough for the French to break up their camps of observation on their own soil and to throw themselves between the Austrians, and Turin and Alexandria—people are curious to know what mighty influence could have arrested the onward march of the Austrian army.

In England it is attributed to the influence of the Derby Cabinet; in Piedmont to the revolution in Tuscany. Another explanation is that Field-Marshal Baron HESS, opposed to the Emperor FRANCIS JOSEPH's policy of rashly invading Sardinian territory, collected his troops between Pavia and Piacenza and refused to advance, preferring disgrace to a compromise of Austria before Europe. A peremptory order from the young and irritated Emperor sent him across the line with his army. Still another explanation is given, almost too absurd for repetition, that the Piedmontese intended to open the flood-gates of the Lake Maggiore in order to inundate the country in the direction of Novara, and thus cut off the retreat of the Austrians.

For the French army, after it had arrived in Sardinian territory, to give itself up to the isolated arbitration and tender mercies of an English Cabinet, leaning towards Austria, was not only asking too much of France, but it was so undiplomatic as to amount almost to an insult. Yet even this last proposition of England NAPOLEON took into consideration, not, it is to be presumed, because he supposed a single man in his Cabinet would support it, but to show his respect to England, and his desire to adopt measures for the preservation of peace. If Russia, Prussia and England combined, could not arrest the progress of the Austrian troops, how was the isolated mediation of the English Cabinet to do it? And how could NAPOLEON, with due respect to Russia and Prussia, accept this isolated mediation, or rather arbitration? The most charitable view we can take of the proposition of Lord DERBY is, that it was an electioneering scheme; it was certainly neither diplomatic nor respectful.

The revolution in Tuscany was well calculated to make Austria hesitate a moment, for the sudden and quiet manner in which it was accomplished, and the unexpected way in which Gen. ULLOA appeared upon the scene, proves clearly that the affair had all been arranged beforehand. Moreover, it is a totally new party that has risen up, or rather it is not the party that was supposed to be strongest, and all this may have required consultation with Vienna, and a change of the Austrian plan of campaign. At the news of the first battle Austria may find Modena and Parma following the example of Tuscany, and then a very decided change would be required in their plan.

But whatever may have been the cause of the Austrian delay, it allowed Marshal CANROBERT and Gen. NIEL to arrive at Turin, and in company with the King, VICTOR EMANUEL—the first furnishing the tactics, the second the engineering, and the third the soldiering—to reconnoitre the ground, examine their defences, and organize their plan of campaign. CANROBERT is the master-at-arms in ordinary of NAPOLEON, and knows all the latter's military hobbies, so that the plans he may adopt or recommend to the others will surely be approved by the Emperor. Everything will then be ready for the Emperor's arrival, and his Majesty's presence will be principally useful in giving enthusiasm to the soldiers. BARAGUAY D'HILLIERS and MACMAHON will enter the campaign from Genoa, operating in front of Alexandria, and for the protection of the line of railway from Genoa to Alexandria and Turin.

The Austrians crossed the Ticino at three points: in a small body at Stresa, on the Lake Maggiore, and in a large body at Gravellona—this latter division dividing again into two, the one marching forward into Mortara, and the other to Novara. From these points they appear to be concentrating toward Vercelli, on the Sesia; and since the Sardinian army will make its principal stand on the Dora-Battea river, half-way between Vercelli and Turin, the armies are not more than twenty-five miles apart, and here, probably, the first great battle will be fought. In this first battle, if it is fought to-day, or the first part of this week, the French must rely on their small arms and bayonets, since it is impossible that much of their artillery could arrive in time. But the Zouaves of the Guard will be there, and these will be relied on for the heavy work with the bayonet.

It was the Sardinians, and not the Austrians, who blew up the bridge of Buffalora, the railway bridge which crossed the Ticino at ten miles from Novara, and which offered the greatest facilities for the invasion of the Sardinian territory. It was supposed at first that the Austrians would invite the first battle at Novara, where RADETZKY gained his great victory over CHARLES ALBERT in 1849; but, as the French force in front of Turin is gaining strength by delay, it is more probable that the movement of the Austrians toward Vercelli is an indication that they intend to hasten a battle on ground nearer Turin.

The movement of troops at Paris continues, but not to the same extent as during last week. Piedmont asked for 200,000 men, and it is quite probable that that number has already arrived in the Piedmontese territory, while those who are on their way now will remain in camps of observation, as reserve corps, on the frontier. These camps will be principally at Toulon and Culoz, the first on the Mediterranean, within eighteen hours steaming of Genoa, and the second on the confines of Savoy, within three days travel of Turin, by Mount Cenis and the Susa railway. Several thousand men were employed last week in clearing the Mount Cenis of snow, in order that the baggage and artillery wagons might pass. It was over this route that Marshal CANROBERT and Gen. NIEL entered Piedmont.

The last of the artillery of the Imperial Guard did not get away from the station at Paris till two days ago. It will pass by Toulon and Genoa, and cannot arrive before Wednesday of this week at Turin.

It is not known at what time the Emperor NAPOLEON will start for the seat of war, for, from this time on as much secrecy will be observed in all the movements of the chiefs and of the armies as possible; the electric telegraph will mostly materially the mode of warfare, since but a day is required to carry news all round Europe from one camp into another, and the best-laid plan may be frustrated by a too extensive publicity. A grand Council was held at the Tuileries on Saturday for the purpose of signalizing the departure of the Emperor. At this Council were present the Ministers, the President of the Legislative bodies, the Empress, the Prince Napoleon and the Prince NAPOLEON. The Empress taken an active interest in the war, and even went so far as to make a sort of official speech to the Council Ministers on the subject of their responsibility on the government of the Emperor's person during his absence.

The Cavalry of the French army in Italy will form eight divisions, divided into sixteen brigades or thirty-two regiments. They will be commanded by Generals D'ALLONVILLE, MORGAN, FAILLY and GAUDE. The Infantry will form twelve divisions at first, or twenty-four brigades, or forty-eight regiments, and there will be twelve battalions of Chasseurs—light cavalry. The number of divisions will be carried ultimately to eighteen.

The First Corps, commanded by the Marshal Count BARAGUAY D'HILLIERS, with General FORE as Chief of the Staff, will embrace three divisions, headed by Generals FORY, BRUNET, BLANCHARD, (a cousin of Marshal PELISSIER,) D'ARGENTON, DE MARTIMPREY, LEBRETON DE LA CHARRIERE and BAYARD. All of these officers distinguished themselves at Sebastopol and in Africa.

The second Corps, commanded by General MACMAHON, with General LEBRUN as Chief of the Staff, will be composed of two divisions, headed by Generals DE LA MOTTE ROUGE, LEFEVRE, BOURBAKI-MAURETIN, FOLIERE, and RAVIRAND, (late Minister of the Interior.)

The third Corps, commanded by Marshal CANROBERT, with General DE SERENVILLE as Chief of Staff, will be composed of three divisions, headed by Generals BOURBAKI, TRECHU, DUCROT, BONAT, BAPAINE, COLLINEAU, RENAULT, PICARD, JANNIN, and for the cavalry, MORNAUBAN.

General BOURBAKI is described by the Courrier de Paris as the type of Gallic dash and daring. He led the Zouaves to the assault at Zaatcha, when he was too severely wounded to use a sword, in light kid gloves, with a cane in one hand and his cigar in his mouth. General JANNIN is the Hercules of his division. In the Crimea, having broken his sword in repulsing a night attack of the Russians, he tore a huge tent-post from its place, and, laying about him with this Cyclopean weapon, strewed the ground with enemies.

The 4th corps of the army of Italy, commanded by General NIEL, Aid-de-Camp of the Emperor, with General RAVIRAND DE LA VILLE-BOURNET as Chief of Staff, will be composed of two divisions, headed by Generals VINOY, NIEL, DE LEVEIRE, DE FAILLY, O'FARRELL and SAURIN.

The Prince NAPOLEON, according to the Piedmontese journals, will command a division of their army under the direct orders of the King. It appears to be true, as stated in my last letter, that it was the mortification shown by Gen. SAINT JEAN D'ANGELY, and the counsels of friends, which induced the Emperor to change his mind in regard to putting the Prince at the head of the Imperial Guard.

The Italian expedition, which was called the Army of the Alps until it entered Italian territory, is hereafter to be called, technically, the Army of Italy.

The Minister of War has again changed the ordonnance in regard to calling out married soldiers on furlough. Only those married before they drew in the conscription will be called into service; all others, having married by special permission of the minister, will be allowed to stay with their families.

The price for substitutes remains, as fixed by the Government two years ago, at 2,000 francs.

All, or nearly all, the corps d'élite, having been ordered to the seat of war, the Paris barracks are only partly filled, and these by rather inferior troops of the line, who seem to have come a long way, and who look somewhat lost at Paris. They are a small, sunburnt, but sinewy, hardy set of fellows, who give one the impression that, if they are not very bright, they can at least stand a good many hard knocks. Each arm of the Imperial Guard, however, has left a small number of men behind at Paris, to serve as depôts, to fill up the ranks of those who may fall on the field, and to train the recruits.

At a dinner given to the superior officers of the Imperial Guard by the Emperor before their departure, his Majesty said to the officers on bidding them adieu, "We are going to have a Summer's work of it, but I hope we shall be able to hunt together at Compiègne in September." His Majesty limits the war to four months. It is said he never appeared so gay and joyous as at present.

The family of the Austrian Ambassador left Paris yesterday, and it is expected the Ambassador will follow to-day. M. DE HUBNER has perhaps at last made up his mind whether there is going to be a war or not.

The young Duke of CHARTRES, second son of the late Duke of ORLEANS, whose year of military tuition at the school of Turin will end in June, has demanded and will receive an appointment in the Sardinian army. He is reported to have said that, not being able to serve in the French army, he should be proud to fight by its side in the ranks of the Piedmontese.

Private letters say that the Count DE CHAMBORD left Frohsdorf, in Austria, the day the Austrian ultimatum was sent to the King of Sardinia. As a Frenchman, and, in his own opinion, the chief of Frenchmen, he could not remain in the enemy's dominions during the war. It is believed he will fix himself in Scotland as an ultra-neutral territory. His palace at Venice has been taken by the Austrians for barracks.

The London Times, by its course lately, has lost an immense part of its influence in France. It was not its persistent abuse of France and patronage of Austria that produced this result, so much as its obstinacy in propagating false and frivolous news. Its injurious articles on the Franco-Russian alliance—an alliance which never existed—gave the coup de grace to its influence. Ordinary foresight should have told its editors that such fabrications, in the interest of Austria, were likely to be thrown out, but the Times appears not to have reflected on this fact, and seized the first intimation as the ground for a series of articles which proved the ruin of a large number of bankers. Such a course is worse than cruel, it is criminal.

It is said by Hungarians that KOSSUTH passed through Paris a few days ago.

It is officially announced to-day that the Emperor will hold a reception to-morrow (Tuesday) evening, and it is generally believed he will leave for the seat of war on Wednesday, or at latest Thursday. The preparations for the journey were completed yesterday.

By telegraph this evening we learn that no movement has yet taken place at Novara or Mortara, where the advanced divisions of the Austrian army are now quartered. The telegraph informs us, however, that Modena has followed the example of Tuscany, and declared in favor of Piedmont, driving out its hated Grand Duchess, while from the North we learn that Russia, Prussia and England are making another attempt at mediation. It will be of no avail now.

MALAKOFF.

THE DECLARATION OF NAPOLEON III.

Austria, in causing her army to enter the territories of the King of Sardinia, our ally, declares war against us. She thus violates treaties and justice, and menaces our frontiers. All the great Powers have protested against this aggression, Piedmont having accepted the conditions which ought to have insured peace, one asks what can be the reason of this sudden invasion? Is it that Austria has brought matters to this extremity, that she must either rule up to the Alps, or Italy must be free to the shores of the Adriatic; for in this country every corner of territory which remains independent endangers her power.

Hitherto moderation has been the rule of my conduct; now energy becomes my first duty. Let France arm, and resolutely tell Europe: "I desire not conquest, but I desire firmly to maintain my national and traditional policy. I observe the treaties on condition that no one shall violate them against me. I respect the territories and the rights of neutral powers, but I boldly avow my sympathies for a people whose history is mingled with our own, and who groan under foreign oppression.

France has shown her hatred of anarchy. She has been pleased to give me a power strong enough to reduce into nonentity the abettors of disorder and the incorrigible members of those old factions whom one incessantly sees conspiring with our enemies; but she has not for all that abdicated her task of civilization. Her natural allies have always been those who desire the improvement of the human race, and when she draws the sword it is not to dominate, but to liberate. The object of this war, then, is to restore Italy to herself, not to impose upon her a change of masters, and we shall then have upon our frontiers a friendly people, who will owe to us their independence. We do not go into Italy to foment disorder or to diminish the power of the Holy Father, whom we have replaced upon his throne, but to remove from him this foreign pressure, which weighs upon the whole Peninsula, and to help to establish there some order based, not upon the caprice of victorious force, but upon the legitimate interests of the populations. We ask for France only her legitimate influence; but, if we wish to maintain our influence, we must also maintain our dignity. Let France, then, be ready to face all contingencies; let her be ready to lavish her treasure and her blood, if need be, in order that she may be respected in her just demands. Let her be ready, if need be, to remind those who are tempted to forget it, that she has 600,000 men who are the guardians of her honor and her interests

WAR!

[illegible]

[illegible] Government, on the [illegible] day of ordering three corps d'armée of the Federal Contingent to be placed on a war footing. Since that date political affairs have taken such a form that the same measures to the remaining six corps d'armée and the necessary requisitions have been made ready to the different quarters. Although Government have [illegible] Chamber, they have received a more detailed statement of the reasons of political events, which will, however, be made to the House with the [illegible] more [illegible].

The Minister's speech was followed by the applause of the Chamber.

From the Monitore de Francfort.

Prussia, under date of April 26, has addressed to her representatives at the several German Courts a circular, of which the substance is as follows: In the Introduction, the difficulties which interposed to prevent the meeting of the Federal Congress arising out of the question of disarmament were treated. The English mediation thrown a bank of nonsense such instances by the circulars already published. This proceeding had inspired Prussia with a disagreeable surprise, and the Prussian Government could not do otherwise than express the regret it felt at the fact. The surprise it prompted was so much the more disagreeable, because there might seem to be some obligation, resulting from the Austrian circulars, the mobilization of the three Prussian corps d'armée, which had been ordered about the same moment. The communication was instructed to insist upon the Prussian view of the conduct of Austria, in order to correct any false interpretation of the military arrangements of the Prussian Government.

The truth is, the Armbruck Ultimatum had forewarned Prussia of the intention of Austria to send the ultimatum to Sardinia after a short delay. Prussia made every effort to dissuade Austria from the measure. At the close of the circular, consequently, the representative is bidden to insist strongly on these efforts; and the Prussian Government declares finally, that without permitting itself to be drawn, in spite of itself, into war, it will devote itself to protecting the true interests of Germany. What these are, are developed at length in a memoir intended for the eye of the representative alone, and which is under no circumstances to become public. The circular we have thus epitomized, is only to be read, but in no case to be copied or published.

THE CONFEDERATION AND THE MINOR STATES.

An extraordinary sitting of the Federal Diet was held May 2, at which the Austrian Ambassador explained the reasons which had induced the Emperor to order the advance of his troops into Sardinia. The Austrian Ambassador's communication was then submitted by the Diet to the Committee for the Management of Military Affairs.

A letter from Baden says that Rastadt has been put upon a war footing. During the last few days the inhabitants have been warned that they must lay in provisions for eight months. Those who do not wish to take these measures, must leave the place. Rastadt, in the Grand Duchy of Baden, is one of the first Federal fortresses.

Correspondence of the Havas Agency.

FRANKFORT, Wednesday, April 27.

It seems daily more and more evident that, in the presence of passing events, Germany is divided into two parties; one desiring to place itself under the warlike banner of Austria, and the other under the more wise and cautious banner of Prussia. Bavaria and three or four States in Southern Germany follow blindly, in whatever circumstances the policy of the cabinet of Vienna; while the Northern States, with the exception of Hanover and Oldenburg, never separate from Prussia, whom they regard as the chief independence. Among the States of the Confederation which may have bound themselves to Austria by special offensive and defensive treaties, Hanover and Bavaria may be named: they may have engaged to place at the service of the Emperor of Austria, at his earliest summons, their respective armies, that is to say, the bodies which may be spared without diminishing in the least the effective of the respective contingents which those States should be ready to furnish at once to the Germanic Confederation. It is said that hitherto the Cabinet of Saxony has resisted the efforts made to involve her in this extraordinary alliance; it is nevertheless noteworthy that the armament is prosecuted in Saxony with redoubled energy, a fact suggesting the idea that something more is intended than merely to set its contingent in the field.

The New Munich Gazette states that military preparations are being proceeded with in Bavaria with great activity. A new levy of the classes of 1858 and 1857 has been ordered.

RUSSIA ADVANCES HER TROOPS TO THE FRONTIERS.

A communication from St. Petersburg, of the 21st, says:

"The proposal for a Congress made by Russia not having been accepted, it is generally believed that the Cabinet has determined to advance an army of observation towards the Austrian frontiers, on the side of Gallicia, Cracow and the Bukovina. Orders have this day been sent by telegraph to Gen. Osten-Sacken, who commands all the regiments of heavy cavalry cantoned in the military colonies of the South. Yesterday an order was addressed to all newspaper editors to abstain from making any statements respecting the movements of troops. Gen. Fortouzow, commandant of the reserves of the Russian army, has been summoned to St. Petersburg. As soon as the levies of recruits are completed, which will be in May, a ukase is to be published ordering a levy of seven men per thousand in the eastern part of Russia. It is well known that the empire is divided into two portions for recruiting purposes."

Correspondence of the London Telegraph.

ST. PETERSBURGH, Monday, April 25, 1859.

The St. Petersburgh papers continue to hold up Louis Napoleon as the beau idéal of a ruler. Never was there Emperor more just than he, nor private individual more devoted to the teachings and dictates of morality or better fulfilling the relations of life. Such is the opinion universally proclaimed by the journalists of holy Russia, touching the life and character of this paragon of purity. For the sake of completeness, they of course do not forget to mention that he is also powerful just now; Need I add that, adhering to the principle of right and justice exclusively, the Emperor of France, they say, cannot but contribute to the furtherance of Russian aims and ends? After all, it is scarcely a merit of his to act rightly, as the inspiration is of too exalted a nature to be supposed to proceed from any other source than that of the interlard saints of the "Orthodox Church." To tell the truth, the lies and flatteries indulged in by the St. Petersburg Press concerning the subject of Napoleon and France are such as to exercise upon any honest English stomach no other effect than that of a violent emetic.

FRANCE—MILITARY MOVEMENTS.

Correspondence of the London Times.

PARIS, Friday, April 29.

The 4th Regiment of Voltigeurs of the Guard received their colors at 3 on Thursday afternoon at the Tuileries. The regiment marched down the Rue de Rivoli, which was thronged with people, and drew up before the window of the entresol of the Pavillon Marsan, which looks on the street. At the window, which is low, stood the Emperor in plain clothes, Prince Jerome, the Emperor's uncle, the Prince Imperial, and the Empress. The Prince Imperial stood upon a chair placed against the balcony, the Emperor holding him by the arm. As the band moved along at the head of the column there were loud cries from compact groups in the multitude of "Vive la Garde!" "Vive l'Empereur!" and some few dropping cries of "Vive l'Italie!" The Emperor repeatedly acknowledged the salutes by taking off his hat, and the little Prince now and then made his military salute, touching his forehead with the back of his hand. His highness did not wear his bearskin cap and uniform, but a child's white dress. The colors were lowered before the Imperial party, the officers saluted with their swords, and the men carried arms, each company crying, "Vive l'Empereur!" as it marched past. These revues de départ must recall to the mind of Prince Jerome departures and returns of former days, and give him material for moralizing, if he feel so disposed. When the Voltigeurs left, the Emperor advanced to the window, and once more saluted the crowd. The Empress lifted the Prince from the chair, but the infant guardsman was evidently pleased with the sight—the bayonets flashing, the flags fluttering, and the shouting of men—and showed as little inclination to abandon his position at the window as Austria to evacuate Lombardy for the benefit of Piedmont, or of France, as the case may be; and when lifted off the chair by his mother, his highness grasped it, and decidedly refused to give way. This amused the crowd exceedingly, and I believe the applause and clapping of hands which followed this show of childish energy were perfectly sincere. Mediation was employed, and, fortunately, succeeded, no doubt on some considération present or future to the contracting party. His highness descended, turned his face to the street, and with a graceful movement kissed his hands to the people and ran off. In a great crowd there is always a divergence of opinion. The compact groups who cheered loudly were possibly quite in earnest, and meant all that might be implied in such a demonstration; but others of the spectators made observations of a different kind. "Le Prince Impérial s'amuse—tout cela amuse les enfants, et apparemment les grandes personnes aussi. C'est très bien. Ce n'est pas le départ seulement qui nous ennuiera soir; c'est l'arrivée—le retour. Voilà bien le commencement;—quand verrons-nous la fin?" These and similar comments were interchanged very freely. The Voltigeurs were in full campaigning order—knapsacks, tent-poles, mess-tins, &c. There will be similar revues de départ accordingly as the different corps leave Paris.

Times Correspondence, May 2.

The artillery corps in garrison at Versailles has received orders to proceed to the South. They were to have quitted Versailles this morning, and are probably now on their way to Lyons. The Eighteen Regiment of the Third Division left Paris this day, and the Eighty-second will leave to-morrow. The Sixty-ninth left last night, and the Twenty-eighth leaves to-night. The snow on Mont Cenis is said still to delay the advance of the troops, who are destined for Britain; but by Genoa they are pouring daily into Piedmont. The Dryade ship of the line sailed from Marseilles on Friday, with a large force for Italy.

A respectable [illegible] Friends in Tuesday for Friday Harbour. There was some difficulty [illegible] opportunity for pleasure. [illegible] Government, the Cabinet [illegible] Ministry [illegible] Austrian garrison [illegible] if the people were so moderate in their desires, [illegible] the integrity and independence of Sardinia had [illegible] [illegible] from Paris to Milan [illegible] The only road open from Italy is by Switzerland [illegible] Mont Cenis, Genoa and Marseilles.

A telegram from Marseilles, which has not been [illegible] to extraordinary conjectures, namely, that French [illegible] warning from Government that it is not safe to leave the port of Toulon.

The Pays throws uncertainty upon all reports as [illegible] Pontifical States [illegible] Protectorates of persons of his suite, observes that all [illegible] to part at an hour's notice, and that consequently, no previous orders are necessary.

STATE OF PUBLIC SENTIMENT—CABINET FUSION—HOPES.

M. Jules Favre, says a Paris correspondent, made a speech in the Corps Législatif on Saturday, which [illegible] report published in the Moniteur is substantially [illegible] it contains some that is significant. In the first place M. Favre put aside any indirect introduction of him by the President, with the declaration that he desired to express himself with complete [illegible]. He then went on to say that although the want of information had been remarked by certain members as very much to be regretted, it had not been expedient how it was that France had been required once a year likely to embrace all Europe, without the representatives of the people having, from [illegible] the right to discuss these events and to refuse the means for supporting hostilities, it may rate the members of the people have the right to ask what is the cause and result of them. In his opinion the French Government had willed and prepared the war; it was, therefore, it was answerable for the results. He denounced the idea of a Congress as absurd; designated diplomatists, with Congress Ivory, as capable of anything, and did all he could to pin the Government to the fact that the only honest end that the war could have would be the independence of Italy, neither more nor less. Of course he obtained no satisfactory reply, but his words will do immense good; they have burnt into the public mind, and will always be reproducible if occasion should demand them.

The Moniteur of Monday prints the speech delivered by Lord Palmerston, on the occasion of his return for Tiverton, in the largest type and on the front page.

Baron James Rothschild has, in consequence of the war, resigned the Austrian Consulship, which he has held for many years.

Great dissatisfaction is said to reign in the French Cabinet. M. Delangle, who should have kept the high post he held in the magistracy instead of grasping at the portfolio of a Minister, decidedly quits office. It is no longer doubtful that the change will take place before the Emperor's departure. M. Laity, former Prefect of the Basses Pyrenées, is still spoken of as his successor.

ARMAMENT OF BELGIUM.

The Emancipation of Brussels says: "The war department of Belgium has for several days past been displaying extraordinary activity, and has adopted certain measures which, at this moment, are significant. At Antwerp, and in the neighboring towns, buildings are being prepared for the reception of the depôts of different regiments and their reserve battalion. The reserve of the 6th of the line has been removed from Charleroi to Malines, and the reserves of one or two regiments are to be sent to Liege. Expeditions of arms and military equipments are made almost daily by railway to Antwerp and the neighboring towns."

WILL ENGLAND KEEP OUT OF THE WAR?

From the London Law Times.

The laws that regulate the conduct of neutrals towards belligerents are extremely complicated, especially in relation to the carriage of war material. It is more than likely that some day, in the Mediterranean, one or our ships will be boarded by a ship of one of the belligerents, on charge of having arms, ammunition, or war stores for the use of the enemy. The suspicion may prove to be unfounded, but it will suffice to set us further. Portberth, the ministry of the time will be charged by the Opposition with neglecting the honor of the country if they do not resent the insult. Oppositions never care for consequences; they would plunge into war, or anything else, if thereby they could eject the party holding office and put themselves in their places. A year will not elapse without some such misadventure giving occasion for a quarrel and plunging us into the struggle.

ENGLISH OPINIONS OF THE WAR.

From the London Times, May 4.

When the Congress of Paris declared, now three years since, that the state of Italy was one which, it proclaimed, must become a peril to the peace of Europe, Austria protested against such "inflammatory language," and the friend of the Pope declared to all who would listen to him that the first desire of the Holy Father's heart was to be left alone with his children. The opportunity has now occurred by which the friends of peace and the confidence of the protectors of Italian Princes was to be tested. Lombardy is not quite divested of troops, although so large a host has gone forth to occupy Piedmont. Mantua is as strong and as able to stand a siege as that fortress was in 1796, and its numerous and well-appointed garrison might be supposed well able to overawe any open territory some twenty or thirty miles to its south. There is no lack of pressing cause for immediate fear in any people who should attempt to realize the moment which the Congress of Paris foresaw; but there is a little hope that the hands of Austria will be occupied, and a chance that her immediate intervention may be stayed. The hope is uncertain, and has respect to the future; the consequence is decided and immediate. But, in spite of these prudential considerations, all Italy gravitates to Piedmont. There is no contest,—there is no pause,—there is no debate. Events flow on as though they were physical facts obeying immutable natural laws. Tuscany, Parma, Modena, Massa—States which possess districts within sight of Mantua, under the guns of Piacenza, and within rapid reach of Ancona—deliberately displace the Austrian Vicegerents who have so long ruled them under the semblance of independent sovereigns. The Piazza at Florence was the scene of the first act of the disintegration of Austrian Italy. In early morning the people assemble in that fine old square, in the presence of so many glories of Italian art, and in view of that long line of statues of illustrious Italians, who have for the most part died in exile or in captivity. Soldiers and citizens are mixed in brotherly alliance. There are clinging and gesticulation, and noisy demonstrations of joy; but there is no violence and no fighting. There being no foreign troops present, there is no one to fight with. The body-guards of the Duke are singing lustily in chorus with the crowd; General Ferrari, the commander of the Tuscan forces, has found himself a General without soldiers, and has laid down his insignia of command. In an hour the populace have peacefully occupied the two fortresses of San Giorgio and San Giovanni, and have hoisted the tricolor of Italy over the Palazzo Vecchio. Then the people issue forth from the Square into the streets, pass on to the hotels of the French and Sardinian Ministers, and shout and applaud until the Ministers answer their compliments by a speech from their balconies, and, to! the revolution is complete. The same process takes place at Parma as at Florence. The moment is supposed to be come when the hand of the foreigner is too much occupied to strike, and the change takes place as though a natural and legal Sovereign had died and another had come to reign in his stead. On Sunday evening there was a demonstration of the population before the Royal Palace, and the officers of the forces of the Duchy sought the presence of the Duchess and desired leave to unite themselves to the army of Piedmont. The Duchess had no choice but instant submission. She had her friends, who would, if it were needed, defend her as a lady who has behaved with moderation in an unpopular position; but, this being unnecessary, she had not one friend to raise an arm for her as the Vicegerent of Austria—and so the revolution in Parma is also accomplished. Rome is not an exception to the general Italian movement. In Rome, also, the people assemble, and the chorus of revolutionary songs is heard in the Corso; the French General, also, is much complimented and much applauded. But here the strange complication of the French position manifests itself. The French General soothes, moderates, and at last reminds his admirers that popular assemblages are forbidden by the Roman laws and by French discipline. The Zouaves at Rome significantly threaten to express any too great manifestation of zealous sympathy on the part of the Roman people for the Zouaves at Genoa. The French are in Piedmont to defend Italy against Austria; they are in Rome to protect the Concordat against Italy. Therefore, the process of chemical affinity, whereby Italy was giving off the Austrian element, and combining with the Sardinian, has been stopped.

Such has been the history of the dreaded revolution which we were taught to expect would, if not firmly compressed, burst forth in blood and massacre. Such has been the first explosion of the long pent up passions of savage Italy. But where are the Red Republicans, and where are the guillotines? There has been as much blood shed in any English contested election during the last week as has been sanctioned by these Italian revolutions, and the deposition and expulsion of three Italian Sovereigns. Every telegram closed with the words, "Public order has not been disturbed." And this is not the "order" that reigned at Warsaw." It is a lasting peace which is the very opposite of solitude. While the citizens and soldiery are straining their voices in cadences more melodious, no doubt, than those which have resounded in the market-places of our constitutional electoral towns there has not even occurred, so far as the accounts tell us, those little incidents of blackened eyes and reddened faces that have sometimes marked the discussions that took place in front of the hustings. The Grand Duke of Tuscany packed up his valuables in peace and deserted, amid the acclamations of his subjects, attended by a guard of honor to Venice, and then proceeds at his leisure to enjoy the hospitalities of the Emperor, his sur-Sovereign, at Vienna. The Duchess Parma appoints her Council of Regency, without hesitation, and goes forth from her revolutionized capital as unmolested as if she had been setting out on a tour of pleasure. The Pope also would have gone with all his Cardinals when he fled, and, this time, without the necessity of a naval disguise, but that the tender solicitude of the French General restrained him. There has been nothing like resistance, nothing like vindictiveness meeting the angry passions. The people and the soldiery were every where too powerful in their perfect tranquillity to hunger for revenge, or to allow the baser spirits to find in a political change an

Loss of the Pomona—Additional Names of the Lost.

A correspondent of the Freeman's Journal says: The cabin passengers of the Pomona consisted of Mrs. Paxton, a retired officer's widow, and her children, Thomas, aged 12, Hazarre, 10, and Lizzie, 8. Of the 393 steerage passengers there were only 39 English and Scotch, and the remainder, 354 souls, were Irish, and chiefly farmers, laborers, and their families. One Irish laborer, named Alexander Palmer, returned home after engaging his passage, and another, a mechanic, named Pat Cleary, was not ready. It may relieve the minds of the friends of the following, who had engaged passage in the Pomona, to know that they were transferred to the Bell's Ward: Teresa O'Neill, Michael Scott, Catherine Looney, Catherine Nelson, George Hays, Catherine Fitzgerald, Thomas Laswell, Margaret Casey, Catherine Norman, Bridget Divine, and Robert Mullins. They are all natives of Ireland. The Government emigration officer, who steered the ship at this port, Lieutenant W. C. Sanders, has left for Liverpool for the scene of the awful disaster. The following is a list of the English passengers: Chas. Parkinson, John Webster, John Chapman, William Randall, James Randall, George Radford, George Palethorpe, Thomas Chainley, James Fowkes and wife, John Miller, Mary Miller, John Frinley, Geo. Armitage and wife, Frederick Sugden, William Akroyd, John Edmundson; David, Elizabeth, William, Joseph, Mary Ann, and Charles Doubleday; John Seddon; Mary, William, Ann, Mary Jane, Elizabeth, and Sarah Anne Whitley; Henry Smith, Betty Giles, Emma and Harvey Shaw. Scotch passengers: John M'Collum and wife, Robert Lyle, Thomas Wilson, William Taylor, Margaret Scott, John Graham, James Keane, and Adam M'Cauley. None of the English or Scotch passengers have been saved.

BROOKLYN INTELLIGENCE.

INQUESTS.—Coroner HORTON held an inquest on Sunday on the body of an unknown man found in the water at the foot of Clinton-avenue, when a verdict of "Found drowned" was rendered. The deceased was apparently about thirty years of age, had wore side whiskers and an imperial, gold watch and chain, and large ring on little finger of right hand. He was dressed in pilot-cloth overcoat, black frock-coat, black pants and vest, calico shirt, white under-shirt and congress boots. In one of his pockets was found a bill of the Brooklyn Gas-light Company, against Hill & Bassett, and a white handkerchief was marked "James Burns." The body of an unknown woman was taken out of the water at Fleemerton's Dock. She was about forty years old, with dark hair spotted with white. She had on black sack, calico dress, and blue apron. A verdict of "Found drowned" was rendered by the jury in this case.

KINGS COUNTY BOARD OF EXCISE.—The Commissioners of Excise met for the first time this year yesterday, and organized by re-electing Mr. JOHN A. WYCKOFF Chairman, and Mr. PETER CHRISTMAN Secretary. The Vice-President of the Kings County Liquor Dealers' Association appeared before the Committee, and urged that the price of a license be fixed at the lowest sum possible, as in that case a majority of the liquor dealers would obtain licenses. The Chairman said that $20 was the lowest they were allowed to go by law—that was the price last year, and the Board had decided not to increase it. Forty applications were made for license yesterday, when the Board adjourned for the week.

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.—The anniversary of this Society was celebrated last evening in the Plymouth Church. The house was well filled, and addresses were made by the Rev. R. W. CLARK, of Brooklyn; the Rev. Mr. SCHERMERHORN, of Rochester; and the Rev. H. W. BEECHER. Mr. BEECHER urged upon the Society the importance of physical education.

THE LAYLIN CHILDREN.—In this case, yesterday, JAMES C. SUTRO, Esq., of counsel for the Industrial School Association, applied to Mr. Justice DEAN, of the Supreme Court, for a certiorari to take the case to a higher Court for review. The application was granted.

THE SABBATH SCHOOLS.—The anniversary of the Eastern District Sabbath Schools will be celebrated to-day by a procession, addresses and singing. It is expected that about 12,000 children will join in the proceedings.

NEW COUNTERFEIT.—A new counterfeit $20 bill, on the People's Bank, of Waterville, Maine, was put into circulation yesterday. Officer BERRY, of the Second Precinct, arrested a man for attempting to pass one of these bills at a store on James-street.

FIRE AND ACCIDENT.—House No. 12 Lafayette-avenue, occupied by GEO. OLNEY, was damaged by fire on Sunday morning to the extent of $1,000. The loss is covered by insurance. A servant girl in the house was so badly frightened that she leaped from the third story to the ground and received serious injuries.

DIED IN THE STREET.—An unknown woman, apparently about 50 years old, died in a fit on Columbia near Amity-street, Tuesday night. Coroner HORTON sent the body to the dead-house for identification.

THE REV. HENRY WARD BEECHER IN BROOKLYN.—It was 12 years ago Sunday that the Rev. HENRY WARD BEECHER commenced his ministry in this city.

THE FIRE DEPARTMENT.—An effort is about to be made to have the Fire Department sustained by the Insurance Companies, instead of the city, as now.

PROSPECT-HILL RESERVOIR.—The work on this Reservoir has been commenced, and it will be completed at as early a day as practicable.

CITY COURT—BEFORE JUDGE CULVER.—The case of Bennett vs. Kneeland, being an action for false imprisonment, growing out of the recent Cemetery of Evergreens difficulty, commenced in this Court Monday, was brought to a close yesterday, the Court granting a motion for a non-suit, made after the testimony for the prosecution was all in.

The Calendar for to-day will be: Nos. 4, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53.

GREAT EXCITEMENT AT WESTPORT, MO.—H. CLAY PATE IN TROUBLE.—The St. Louis Democrat learns from Westport, Mo., that considerable excitement prevailed in that place, in consequence of a discovery that H. CLAY PATE, the Kansas correspondent of the Missouri Republican, and the renowned hero of the battle of Black Jack, had stolen a negro, the property of Dr. J. T. MORRIS, of Westport, and fled the State with his booty. Last September, Dr. MORRIS bought of PATE a colored woman and three children, for the sum of $1,500, for which he paid him $500 in cash, the balance to be paid in property. After the purchase, the Doctor discovered that the negroes were under mortgage, and were liable to be taken at any time by their legal owners. Not wishing to hold property under such circumstances, he insisted that PATE should take back his mortgaged negroes, and return him the money paid; but PATE had no such intention. He bamboozled the Doctor, and gave him a bill of sale of his negro man Austin for $1,000, as security for the payment of the money advanced by the Doctor on the first purchase, besides his note too to make up $1,500, whereupon the Doctor made a deed of his property, valued at $1,000, to PATE. The latter had now got things in proper shape, and understanding that the Doctor intended to sell the negro, he ran that individual off to Wayne City. As PATE was said to be without money when he arrived in this city, it is supposed that the parties here who hired him to defame the Free State men of Kansas assisted him to escape.

SPORTING

The Annual Regatta of the New-York Yacht Club.

The Annual Regatta of the New-York Yacht Club will take place on Thursday, the 26 day of June [illegible] to give an extra degree of interest to the next Regatta of our Yacht Club [illegible] "High Latitudes," and the arrival [illegible] Yacht, the Fleet, in which he made [illegible] Commodore Gerard, one of the Bayonne [illegible] Great anxiety has been felt, that [illegible] the coming Regatta.

[illegible] on this occasion under the [illegible] adopted at the annual meeting of the Club:

"The distance of the length of ball at head line and [illegible] beam when found is to be the exponent of [illegible] of the class of a yacht, but of her sempre [illegible] as to the allowance of time."

The entries, it is anticipated, will be very numerous. [illegible] have been two new yachts added to the Club since the Fall Regatta, and two others have been lengthened.

To-morrow, Thursday, there is to be an election of a Commodore in place of Moses H. Grinnell, who declined the honor of the office when he was elected in February last.

The sailing course of the Regatta will be as heretofore, in conformity with the Constitution of the Club, viz., from opposite the Elysian Fields, Hoboken, to the Southwest Spit and back. There will be essential [illegible], however, this year, in the location of the [illegible] stakes-boats. When a second Regatta takes place in any one year, the course is from Robbins' Light to the Light-boat off Sandy Hook and [illegible]

It is positively impracticable that a Regatta given [illegible] for the entertainment of the members of the Club, who are out boat-owners, and their families, should take place on any other course than one suitable for their convenience. When, therefore, any of the boat-owners desire to sail at sea, it is necessary that a separate stakes should be made, under the provisions of the Club, as was done last Summer in the great [illegible] around Long Island, of Plum Gut memory.

The prizes for the coming Regatta are five in number, [illegible] one each for three classes of sloops, and [illegible] for two classes of schooners. The prize for the [illegible] class of schooners has been increased by the [illegible] of the competitors to $450. The "Cup" [illegible] being manufactured by TIFFANY & Co.

In addition to the usual steamer for the use of the [illegible] of the Club, their families, and foreign [illegible] there will be a small boat chartered by the Reception Committee for the accommodation of the Reporters of the Press, and for such other privileged persons as may prefer her to the other boats at the service of the Club.

SUFFERINGS OF PIKE'S PEAK EMIGRANTS.—Mr. J. B. BROMBY, Route Agent of the Overland Mail Company, writes from Cottonwood Springs, April 26, to his employers: "Pike's Peak has turned out to be a humbug, and the road is lined with starving men; and God knows we have got to give them something to eat as long as we have it. If you could do something to keep the poor deluded devils from starving, you would be doing a kindness to humanity. We will try and get through as well as possible, but lots of the poor fellows are bound to die. There are no provisions in the country only what belongs to the Mail Company. The traders along the road have nothing in the way of provisions. They (the emigrants) have not attempted to force anything yet, but they are bound to do it if you do not give them something to eat." A letter to the St. Louis Republican confirms these accounts. It says: "They come back as many of them went, without any means of living on the way. Destitute of any means of conveyance, disappointed and utterly disheartened, with broken hopes and blasted fortunes, toil-worn, footsore and heart-weary, these wretched adventurers came straggling across the plains, in squads of dozens or scores, begging at the stations for food to eat, and a temporary shelter from the driving storms. The well-known generosity of the contractors on this line, will doubtless save many a poor fellow from famishing by famine, but what can they do to supply the wants of a starving multitude?"

SUPREME COURT—GENERAL TERM.

Cumberland Coal Company vs. Allen M. Sherman et al.—We understand that in this case the order of the Court has been entered, overruling the demurrer on every point except that the Court held there is a misjoinder of causes of action; that the personal claim against Sherman individually cannot be joined with the main cause of action. The plaintiffs have leave to amend within twenty days, on payment of costs, without prejudice to the injunction already granted.

SPECIAL TERM.

Before Justice Sutherland.

In re The Estate of Clotilda Smith, &c.—Report confirmed and order granted.

Abm. Heyman vs. Chas. Fox.—Default opened and cause restored to Special Circuit Calendar, on payment of costs of inquest and $7 costs of this motion.

John H. Dykers et al. vs. Thompson N. Hollister et al.—Motion for reference granted without costs.

Before Justice Allen.

THE CITY INSPECTOR'S CASE.

The People ex. rel. George W. Morton vs. Daniel F. Tiemann.—This was, it will be remembered, a motion for a peremptory mandamus to compel the Mayor to countersign a warrant for the payment of relator's salary as City Inspector during January and February, 1859. The motion was opposed by the Mayor on the ground that the relator's term of office expired at the close of last year, and he was therefore not entitled to any salary.

Justice ALLEN this morning rendered his decision, holding that the Mayor did refusing the mandamus. He holds, in a long and elaborate opinion, that the relator is not entitled to the salary claimed on the following grounds:

1. That to entitle himself to the salary claimed, the relator must show himself entitled of right to the office. The principle which sustains the acts of officers de facto as respects third persons, will not avail to sustain a claim for the salary or fees of office. These are incident to the title, not to the usurpation and colorable possession.

2. That the claim of the relator to hold over, by reason of the omission of the Mayor to appoint an officer in his place at the expiration of his term, cannot be supported by the common law. There is no common law rule by which a public officer appointed or chosen for a fixed time can hold office beyond that term upon the failure of the proper body to appoint a successor. Acts of officers may sometimes be sustained under such circumstances to protect the rights of a third party, but the officer himself cannot claim to hold over, unless there is some provision in the charter or statute authorizing it.

3. That in relation to the office of City Inspector in the City of New-York, there is no such provision that the incumbent shall hold over after the expiration of his term, until his successor is appointed.

4. That the relator had therefore not established his right to the writ asked, and his application must be denied.

COURT OF OYER AND TERMINER.

Before Justice Barlow.

The People vs. James Glass.—The second trial of James Glass, for murder, was resumed to-day, with further attempts to obtain a jury. The additional panel of one hundred jurors was exhausted before noon, without one juror being obtained.

After some discussion between counsel and names of jurors drawn when their names were called yesterday, were called over again, and the twelfth juror at last obtained from among them.

The following persons compose the jury: Jasper E. Corning, Terence M. Lynch, John Littlefield, Chas. M. Magee, Chas. L. Stewart, Chas. S. Schermerhorn, Geo. Godfrey, Alexander Gilsch, Wm. F. Long, Timothy E. McElroy, Andrew D. Savage, Wm. L. Stewart.

SUPERIOR COURT—Special Term.

Before Justice Sutherland.

Ann Gilchrist vs. Alexander Elliott.—Motion granted, with order of reference to John B. Burchard, Esq., as sole referee to hear and determine the issues in this action.

Francis Jordan, Administrator, &c. vs. Anthony Gough.—Motion to vacate order of arrest denied with $7 costs.

COMMON PLEAS—Special Term.

Before Judge Rudy.

Kessler vs. Schlesinger.—Judgment for plaintiff for relief demanded.

Demarest vs. Doug.—Case settled.

Before Judge Hilton.

McNamara vs. McNamara.—In this case the plaintiff applied for a separation from her husband, on the ground of cruel and inhuman treatment. The husband put in a general denial, and averred that the plaintiff had been guilty of adultery. Testimony was taken before a referee, and this morning the Judge delivered an opinion, in which he held that though there was no proof of any criminality on the part of the plaintiff, yet her conduct had been loose and such as not to be commended. The Court, therefore, ordered an order directing a separation between the parties, and the ground that the conduct of the plaintiff had been such as to render her husband so to remain it unsafe and improper for him to cohabit with her.

MARINE COURT.

Before Justice A. A. Thomson.

Gilbert vs. Curtis.—The defendant, who is the proprietor of the Telegraph line of stages, was sued for injuries to the plaintiff, caused by his being run down by one of these stages. Mr. Gilbert was picked up in the gutter in the Hospital. Very little defense was offered, and the jury gave a verdict for plaintiff—damages, $500.

TUESDAY, May 17—P. M.

The tone of the Stock Exchange to-day is that of firmness, particularly on the Western Railroad shares and New-York Central. The prices are rendered irregular, partly by rumors from hour to hour of European news by telegraph, outside the dispatches to the Press; but mainly, of course, by the resistance of the recent speculative sellers to have the market go up upon their outstanding contracts. The various fluctuations of the day take the range of at least 1 ⅌ cent. on Rock Island, Galena and Michigan Central, and ½ ⅌ cent. on New-York Central. Rock Island was sold at the early Board as high as 64 ⅌ cent., but the deliveries of the day being soon after relieved by offers to lend the stock, the cash price fell back to 63@63¾ ⅌ cent.; Galena opened at 64, as against 63¾ yesterday afternoon, and finally closed 65 ⅌ cent. sales; Michigan Central sold up to 43, and Michigan Guaranteed to 32½ ⅌ cent. Toledo advanced to 27½ ⅌ cent.; Panama to 118, and Pacific Mail to 73¾ ex-dividend, at the close. New-York Central opened 73, sold up to 73¾, then down to 73¾, and closed at 73 ⅌ cent. The deliveries of the day were again embarrassed by a scarcity of certificates, although no party appeared disposed to withhold the free use of the stock, and the involuntary squeeze was quite unexpected. In State Stocks there were some considerable short sales on the calculation of a dearer Money Market, as the season advances, in sympathy with the European advance in interest. The contracts thus offered were taken up, and the variation from yesterday's prices was not important. In Railway Bonds no large business was done, though prices are in the main weaker than before the recent news from abroad. The general market this afternoon left off firm on the Share list; steady on State Stocks and with rather a more confident feeling on the Bull account.

The rumors of the day of further news by the Vigo could be traced to no authentic source, and after the distribution of the mail by the Arago to Wednesday evening, May 4, from Southampton, they were not generally believed as even probable. The latest dispatch from London, by the Arago, quotes Consols 90¾@90⅞, and the letters from Liverpool anticipate rather a steadier market for Cotton. In our own market, to-day, a leading private Banker, connected with the Northern trade, drew Exchange with much freedom and confidence, both at 60 days and at sight, on London, which certainly argues no immediate distrust in the security of Great Britain, or in the steady movement of general trade in that quarter. His terms were 110¼ ⅌ cent. net at 60 days, and 110¾ early in the day, and subsequently 110¾ net, at sight. Other Bankers conformed to the same terms, and there were also considerable transactions in Mercantile bills at 109¾@109¾, and in transitory Bank bills at 110@110¼. The Boston steamer will take about $650,000 in Gold for New-York account.

We have nothing to add to our last report of the Money Market. The advance of ¼@½ ⅌ cent. on long-date paper, (on nearly all bills for and July,) may be considered established. Prime short paper, and loans on demand to the Stock Brokers, are still within the previous quotations. The Customs to-day are $109,000. The disbursements by the Sub-Treasury, $147,000. Balance, this afternoon, $8,772,958.

Messrs. WAGNER'S circular of this date remarks:

"In this market, during the week, we have had no regular business, and prices are still unsettled. We know, however, that some sales have been made, which have not been reported, and at prices which have not transpired. The quotations annexed represent the nominal state of the market, with one or two sales, for cash lows, at something less. Our export buyers are not doing much in the superfluity which still hangs over the political horizon of Europe; our domestic buyers are taking only small parcels for actual wants; the chief business done has, therefore, been on speculation for disposition at a future day. Holders are not disposed to force sales, believing we have in a great degree discounted the effect, as far as known, of the disturbed state of Europe."

The City Comptroller will receive proposals until Thursday, the 16th of June, at 2 P. M., for the whole or any part of the three hundred thousand dollars of Central Park Improvement Stock. Said stock will be issued in shares of one hundred dollars each, bearing interest at the rate of 6 ⅌ cent. ⅌ annum, payable quarterly, and the principal redeemable on the 1st of August, 1867.

The following is the latest return of the New-Orleans Banks. An arrival at that port from the Rio Grande brings $735,000 in Mexican Silver:

FISH—The principal kinds have been in very moderate request, at essentially unchanged prices.

FLOUR AND MEAL—The market is decidedly less active, to-day, for State and Western Flour. Speculators are not disposed to move freely, until they shall have received later advices from Europe. The demand from the regular trade is fair, though not brisk. Most holders meet the requirements of buyers, readily, at, in the main, yesterday's prices. In some instances, lower rates have been accepted. Though no general decline has been reported, the tendency is decidedly in favor of purchasers, especially in inferior and common qualities. Sales have been made, since our last, of 13,600 bbls.
